

Director

Edinburgh

Salary £75–£100k

Scottish Council of Independent Schools (SCIS) is an independent educational charity representing over 70 member schools in Scotland, which educate more than 32,000 children of all abilities from diverse backgrounds. SCIS promotes choice, diversity and excellence in Scottish education.

After nearly 20 years of much valued service, the present Director, Judith Sischy OBE, is stepping down and the Board now seeks a high calibre successor to maintain and build upon the successes of the past two decades.

Reporting to the SCIS Board, and leading a small committed team, you will have a challenging and wide ranging remit which will include:

- High visibility leadership
- Strategic planning and policy development
- Marketing and communications

- Promoting the interests of the independent sector with the Government, public and private bodies and others
- Support to schools on a wide range of issues
- Making a worthwhile contribution to the development of education in Scotland
- Preparing and monitoring annual budgets, and providing efficient office management and administration

Innovative, energetic and proactive in approach, you will have a strong track record of motivated leadership and public relations/media experience together with a demonstrable commitment to the education of children and young people. This is an outstanding opportunity to join an influential and highly respected organisation, and play a key part in its future development and growth.
