ensuring that the integrity of management information remains intact and adding value in ad-hoc areas such as systems, acquisitions and other major business initiatives as required.

A driven and ambitious qualified accountant, you will possess considerable financial management experience gained within a company of scale, or perhaps through advising within one of the Big 4. This should include a detailed knowledge of operational financial reporting and forecasting, together with demonstrable people management skills. You should be open, pro-active and results oriented by nature, with the ability to present yourself as being lucid, commercial and progressive in your thinking and approach. In addition, the personal attributes of confidence, maturity and highly developed interpersonal skills will enhance your impact in this key role, which is regarded as a platform for future career development within the group.
